Fishing practice

The fishing permit

The seasonal fishing licence is issued on a personal basis and is non-transferable. It serves as proof of payment for the current season and must be carried at all times when fishing.

Residents and non-residents who hold a MIL (or an electronic certificate) may renew their seasonal licence by completing the payment through the e-Tràmits online portal:

<https://www.e-tramits.ad>

Those who do not hold a MIL (or electronic certificate) must pay for their seasonal licence in person at the administrative services of the Government building or at their local comuns.

Fishing section licence

A fishing section licence is a personal and non transferrable document which must be held, along with the corresponding fishing licence, to fish in Andorra's fishing areas.

Only 2 fishing permits with catch can be obtained per day and fisherman.

Catch and release

Catch and release must be done artificial lures with just one hook and the hook should be barbless or should have a flattened barb, and any fish caught must be returned to the water immediately. Any fish that are caught must be removed from the water using a landing net. Holders of catch and release licences should carry a landing net with them.
