

15 LES ABELLETES LAKE

DON'T MISS...

the vias ferratas at Isards pass, if you're a fan of adventure. One is for beginners and the other is for more sportive types, with a 30-minute climb and an hour return.

DID YOU KNOW?

Pas de la Casa was one of the most guarded passes by the Germans during World War II, as escaping prisoners often used it.

TOPONYMY

Arieja: This river hardly touches Andorran territory. Its name most likely comes from the Latin aurifera (aurigera), meaning "golden waters".

Les Abelles path

Les Abelles lake is at the head of the Arieja river basin, which is a tributary of the Garonne river. This river is a natural line that sketches out the French-Andorran border, providing it with both an Andorran and French side.

Les Abelles lake often plays host to fishermen looking for trout. In Andorra, apart from river trout (Salmo trutta fario) and rainbow trout (Oncorhynchus mykiss), you can also find brook trout (Salvelinus fontinalis). In the southern part of the country, otters (Lutra lutra) have also been spotted.

The starting point is at the Pas de la Casa ski resort, and from there you'll climb up along the Arieja riverbank until reaching Les Abelles lake. This is a quite level and short path, which offers spectacular views of a lovely Pyrenean mountain lake.

To reach the top, keep snaking up until you come to Els Isards pass, where you'll have to turn to the left until you come to Les Abelles peak (2,596 m).
