

57 TOMB LAUREDIÀ

(MEDIUM ROUTE)

DON'T MISS...

Climbing the Coll de la Gallina hill and enjoying the views from the very top, as well as the sculpture by the artist Philippe Lavaill in honour of Joaquim "Purito" Rodríguez.

DID YOU KNOW?...

that the Marratxa dance is the traditional dance of the Sant Julià de Lòria parish. This dance has become a living, festive expression of the inhabitants of Sant Julià de Lòria, and it's normally performed during the Festa Major festivities, and is attended by the entire population as they crowd into the town's main square.

TOPONYM

Nagol: According to the book "Recull topogràfic per la seca, la meca i les Valls d'Andorra", Nagol means "pot of water". Latin etymology aguale with the addition of the preposition -en; which gives way to En Agol.

Signs for Tomb Lauredià

The Tomb Lauredià is a popular route that runs between the town of Sant Julià de Lòria and the halfway point of the mountain. This route is of very low technical difficulty. It provides magnificent views over Sant Julià de Lòria and allows you to visit the picturesque towns of Aixirivall and Nagol.

It is also a good option for lovers of Romanesque architecture, as it provides the chance to visit the Sant Serni and Sant Martí de Nagol chapels.

During the route, which runs alongside the river, you can see the black poplars (Populus nigra), white willows (Salix alba) and European ashes (Fraxinus excelsior), or the beautiful summer lilac (Buddleja davidii). Among the most common fauna, it's easy to come across viperine water snakes (Natrix maura), which are completely harmless, and the brown trout (Salmo trutta). A bit further up, you'll come across a wide variety of shrubs, including Phoenician juniper (Juniperus phoenicea) and fly honeysuckle (Lonicera xylosteum). The blue rock thrush (Monticola solitarius) also comes out of its hiding places, weather permitting.

Don't miss out on the views of the Sant Martí de Nagol church, which dates back to 1048, and was built on the side of a cliff and overhanging the valley, which conditioned its orientation. Its nave is rectangular, somewhat irregular; its northward facing wall was built up against the cliff. It's semi-circular apse faces the west, conditioned by the landscape, given that the only possible entry point is to the east, where the entrance was built. The building has four windows, one at feet height, one at the apse and two on the southward facing wall. The ceiling was rebuilt in the 20th century and has two slopes.
